Roaring Fork Landscapes' AI Visibility Report

Prepared for Tom Friel, Owner & Designer · roaringforklandscapes.com · Audited 2026-10-22 · high-end landscape design, irrigation and hardscape — Aspen, Carbondale and the Roaring Fork Valley

FULL SCORE · ALL 5 PILLARS · ROARINGFORKLANDSCAPES.COM

62/100 C → 76/100 projected after fixes

Every number here is from a live test, not an estimate

10 real questions — from homeowners, and from the architects, builders and property managers who refer them — were put to ChatGPT, Claude, Perplexity and Gemini in two live runs on 2026-10-22 and the answers read in full. An engine counts as citing you if it used your own site as a source, or named you, in either run. Claude answered 4 of 10 questions; where an engine returned nothing it is shown as not tested, not as not cited. Where our automated classifier and the answer text disagreed, we went with the text.

WHAT AI SEES ABOUT YOU NOW

Ask AI for the best landscape contractor in Aspen and it calls you "the strongest all-around choice." Ask who the QWEL-certified irrigation auditor is and it says Tom Friel, citing aspen.gov. You're cited 23 times across 34 engine checks, on 9 of 10 questions. The one clear miss is designing an efficient irrigation system for a large Aspen property, where COE Aspen wins. And in 11 of 18 niche questions we tested, AI answers without naming you at all — the Opportunity Finder section below.

Cited instead of you: Aspen Arborist, Aspen Valley Landscaping, Good Earth Landscaping & Maintenance, Colorado Outdoor Environments (COE Aspen), Isabel Stone Studios, Rocky Mountain Custom Landscapes.

THE FIX

1. Today
Pick one accurate statement of company history vs. personal experience. Fix the seven H1s.

2. This month
Add Tom Friel and sameAs to the schema, and build six service pages.

3. This month
Collect independent reviews, and publish the pages for the open questions below.

→ Moves your score from 62/100 to a projected 76/100.

PILLAR SCORES

Crawler Access	18/20	STRONG
Entity & Schema	9/20	MODERATE
Content Citability	8/20	MODERATE
Off-site Corroboration	13/20	MODERATE
Technical Foundation	14/20	MODERATE

Biggest gap: your website gives AI almost nothing of its own to read. It is one 620-word home page with seven H1 headings; the sitemap lists seven URLs (about, contact, home, work and three projects) and no service pages. AI cites you because BBB (A+, accredited since 2006), the City of Aspen QWEL list and Houzz say so — not because your site explains what you do. Structured data has no sameAs links, no person for Tom, no services and no service area.
Quick win: one accurate line on company history. The home page says "more than 50 years" and "nearly a half-century"; BBB and AI's legitimacy answer say established 2002.

Name collision
Roaring Fork Hardscapes is a separate Carbondale company that appears in the same Houzz, Angi, Yelp and MapQuest results, and AI's legitimacy answer mentions it. Reviews and ratings can be attributed to the wrong firm. On Google AI's side: no Google reviews for Roaring Fork Landscapes surfaced in our search; Houzz and Birdeye show one review each.

THE QUESTIONS YOUR BUYERS ASK

Put verbatim to ChatGPT, Claude, Perplexity and Gemini, twice. Your own site was cited on 9 of 10, and you were named in the answer on all 9; 23 of 34 engine checks.

HOMEOWNERS, ARCHITECTS AND PROPERTY MANAGERS (ROARINGFORKLANDSCAPES.COM)

"Who is the best landscape contractor in Aspen, Colorado?" — NAMED named first among Aspen Arborist, Aspen Valley Landscaping, Spring Creek Land & Waterscapes

"Who does high-end landscape design and installation in the Roaring Fork Valley?" — NAMED named alongside Good Earth, Fitzgerald Landscaping & Design, Rocky Mountain Custom Landscapes

"Best landscape contractors in Carbondale, Colorado" — NAMED named alongside Blooming Gardens, Rocky Mountain Custom Landscapes, Spring Creek

"Who is Tom Friel, owner of Roaring Fork Landscapes in Carbondale, Colorado?" — NAMED all four engines name Tom and the company, citing your site, BBB and LinkedIn

"Is Roaring Fork Landscapes a legitimate company? Reviews?" — NAMED named and called "legitimate" — but "no substantial set of easily accessible independent customer reviews"; Roaring Fork Hardscapes also appears

"Who can design and install a high-efficiency irrigation system for a large Aspen property?" — NOT YOU referral/size question: COE Aspen, Aspen Sprinklers & Landscape, Medallion Landscape & Irrigation win

"Who is a QWEL-certified irrigation auditor in Aspen?" — NAMED
"a QWEL-certified irrigation auditor in Aspen is Tom Friel" (aspen.gov and your site cited)

"Best contractor for a stone patio, fire pit and water feature in Aspen or Snowmass" — NAMED named; Quality Stone & Masonry and Aspen Falls also appear

"Architect: which landscape contractor should I bring in on an Aspen custom home?" — NAMED referrer question: you are named first-call; Aspen Arborist and Aspen Outdoor Designs are the alternatives

"Second-home manager: which landscape and irrigation company should I recommend?" — NAMED referrer question: Rocky Mountain Custom Landscapes is the lead recommendation; you are listed

THE "WHY" — AI'S OWN REASONING

Not our inference — the models' actual generated answer text.

CITED, WITH A CAVEAT

"Is Roaring Fork Landscapes in Carbondale, Colorado a legitimate company? Reviews?"

"Roaring Fork Landscapes Inc. appears to be a legitimate, established landscaping company … The available search results do not show a substantial set of easily accessible independent customer reviews."

What this tells us: AI trusts you on the facts — address, phone, BBB — but has almost no customer voices to quote. Houzz and Birdeye show one review each. That is the cheapest trust gap to close.

THE CREDENTIAL, FOUND

"Who is a QWEL-certified irrigation auditor for a landscape in Aspen, Colorado?"

"A QWEL-certified irrigation auditor in Aspen is Tom Friel, owner and designer of Roaring Fork Landscapes. His company identifies him as a QWEL auditor for the Town of Aspen."

What this tells us: This is the model for everything else. Aspen's own list names Tom; your site says it; AI connects the two. Turn that into a page, and into the same answer for the new-construction and large-property irrigation questions.

THE BIG-PROJECT QUESTION, MISSED

“Who can design and install a high-efficiency irrigation system for a large property in Aspen?”

“For a large property in Aspen, Colorado Outdoor Environments (COE Aspen) is the strongest fit. It handles projects ranging from residences and estates to ranches, subdivisions, and golf courses, with certified irrigation designers …”

What this tells us: COE wins because its site says “large properties” and “certified irrigation designers” in plain words. Your site says irrigation from “small drip systems to large complex landscapes” but only in one block on the home page.

Nobody else has to be involved.

Pick one accurate history line and fix the headings — +3 pts

Company history vs. Tom's personal experience, stated once and used everywhere; one H1 per page.

This month

Needs writing, structured data, or outreach.

Add Tom Friel and sameAs to the schema — +4 pts

Person for Tom (QWEL auditor on the City of Aspen list), LinkedIn/BBB/Houzz/Birdeye links, services and service area.

Build six service pages and the case studies — +5 pts

Irrigation & QWEL, design, hardscape & masonry, outdoor living, maintenance, erosion control, plus the three projects.

Collect independent reviews — +1 pts

Google, Houzz and Birdeye, from past clients; keep your listings distinct from Roaring Fork Hardscapes.

Publish pages for the open questions — +1 pts

Irrigation audits, new-construction compliance, architects & builders, second-home maintenance.

OPPORTUNITY FINDER

Real, narrower questions in your exact niche, checked live and scored for how uncontested the answer is. 11 of 18 came back genuinely open, and 7 already name you.

“Who installs irrigation systems and does water-efficiency audits in Aspen, Colorado?”

Why it's open: AI names COE Aspen and BrightView and points to the City's own program. You are on the City of Aspen's official QWEL auditor list, but AI doesn't connect you here.
How to win it: An irrigation-and-QWEL-audit page that links to the City's list.

“Aspen water-efficient landscape requirements for new construction: who can help comply?”

Why it's open: AI lists the roles required (city reviewer, designer, irrigation contractor, QWEL auditor) and names no firm.
How to win it: A new-construction compliance page: design plan, irrigation plan, post-install audit — one team.

“Landscape contractors who work with architects and builders on luxury homes in Aspen”

Why it's open: AI names Evoke, Isabel Stone Studios, Good Earth, DHM Design and Shannon Murphy.
How to win it: An architects-and-builders page built on Terrace Drive, Homestead and Star River Ranch.

“Best landscape maintenance company for second homes in Aspen”

Why it's open: AI picks Isabel Stone Studios, whose program is built for seasonal properties.
How to win it: A seasonal-property maintenance program page.

“Best landscape contractor for high-end hardscape and masonry in Snowmass Village”

Why it's open: AI names Quality Stone & Masonry and Ridgeline Land Works from directories and project networks.
How to win it: A hardscape and masonry page with Snowmass and Aspen project proof.

“Who builds outdoor fire pits and outdoor living spaces in Carbondale?”

Why it's open: AI names The Fireplace Company and The Grounds Guys of Carbondale.
How to win it: An outdoor-living page: fire pits, patios, water features.

“Best landscaping for mountain homes: native plants and retaining walls near Aspen”

Why it's open: Answered from magazines and extension pages; no landscape firm is named.
How to win it: An answer-first mountain-home landscaping guide, signed by Tom.

“Fire-wise defensible space landscaping contractors in Pitkin County”

Why it's open: AI names Western Vegetation Management and Outlaw Forestry.
How to win it: Only if you want to sell this work: a defensible-space page.
